Pine Seed Law To Be Enforced

July 4- Charlottesville- State Forester George W. Dean today issued instructions to all foresters and chief forest wardens of the Virginia Forest Service to begin immediate rigid enforcement of Virginia's Pine Seed Tree Law.

The Pine Seed Tree Act (Section 549-a-1 Act, 1948) was enacted in the last session of the General Assembly and provides, in part, that where loblolly pine or shortleaf pine singly or together, represent 50 per cent or more of a stand, that four cone bearing trees of either species, fourteen inches or larger in diameter, be left standing on each acre for seed purposes. Persons violating the act may be assessed by the Commonwealth, the sum of two dollars and fifty cents for each seed tree cut in violation of the Act.

The rapidly dwindling pine timber makes such a law necessary, the State Forester said. The high quality shortleaf and loblolly sawtimber and pulpwood is being cut faster than it is growing, he continued, and it is imperative that a source of pine seed be left tostart the new crop. The forester pointed out that the seed trees themselves do not guarantee a new crop of pine, but do greatly increase the possibility. Low grade hardwoods invading former pine lands is a serious problem to the timber industry.

The Virginia Forest Service recommends that trees with large crowns and which are evenly spaced over the area be left as seed trees. Assistance in selecting and marking trees to be left for seed trees, to be removed, can be secured from the Virginia Forest Service upon request.

Mr. Dean invites anyone desiring further information concerning the Pine Seed Tree Act to contact their local forester. District Forester R. P. Brierley, Box 386, Farmville, Va. handles forestry matters for the area including Appomattox County.

Savings Bonds

Virginia's Savings Bonds sales to June 25th totaled $12,324,818, against a quota of $16,100,000. The figures have been released by the State Director's office. The a counting period for the drive ends July 18th, it was pointed out by C. H. Edwards, State Director. Reports of sales that reach the Federal Reserve on or before the close of business July 18 will be credited against county and city quotas.

According to official tabulations, fourteen Virginia counties are well over the top of their quota, with at least twenty-five other counties well within reach of their quota.

Committees of the following areas are officially over the top: Amelia, Bath, Bland, Buchanan, Buena Vista, Altavista, Giles, Green, Hopewell and Prince George, Isle of Wight, Mathews, Middlesex, Natoway, Portsmouth and Norfolk County.

HORACE H. EDWARDS
FOR GOVERNOR

My Dear Friends:

As you know, I am a candidate for governor, and I am appealing with you to join with me in an effort to provide our children the best educational facilities and opportunities ever made available to them. They are our most priceless possession - our efforts must not fail them.

We have 496,596 school children based on average daily attendance this session. The Bureau of Census would indicate that Virginia in 1958 would have a school enrollment of 784,887 pupils. If we have a 50% increase in school population from 1949 through 1958, our school building requirements will be increased accordingly. The teachers minimum pay will have to be in line with that of other professions if we keep the necessary qualified teachers.

I firmly believe every parent wants to have a part in paying his child's educational cost, which was $106 plus per pupil for 1947-48, countywise from primary through high school. You will agree with me that local property owners and farmers should not have to raise their real estate taxes and personal property taxes to take care of the additional buildings and improved teachers' salaries needed for our schools.

That is why I am recommending a school tax of 2% on retail sales. By such a tax everybody would pay a little as he spends and, thus, would spread the tax base among all our citizens. No tax would be collected until a 15c purchase is made. I shall ask a committee of merchants and citizens to work out a simple plan for handling so as to avoid the troublesome details found in some sales tax states.

Naturally our farmers' feed, seed, fertilizers and machinery should be exempt and the same applies to what they produce and sell, such as corn, wheat tabocco, peanuts and cotton, dairy products and livestock.

Your help and support would certainly mean a lot to us who are working for better schools for our children, and I would be so grateful if you would vote for me and tell your friends what we are fighting for. If we stick together, victory will be ours on August 2.

Sincerely,
HORACE H. EDWARDS.

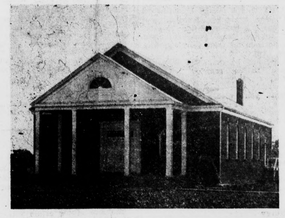
Dedication Of Red Oak Church



On Sunday, July 17, the Red Oak Baptist Church will dedicate its new church building. The dedication services will begin at 11 A. M., and will include: a presentation of the key of the new church building by Robert A. Lucado, chairman of the building committee to the pastor of the church, Rev. G. Edward Hughes. J. Curry Abbitt will give a history of the Red Oak Church, which was constituted in 1776 and is one of the oldest Baptist churches in Virginia. The morning sermon will be delivered by Rev. W. M. Black.

At 12:30 P. M., lunch will be served on the grounds. The afternoon service will begin at 2 P. M., with a song service of old familiar hymns followed by greetings from former pastors, pastors of the Appomattox Association and George Abbitt, the moderator of the Appomattox Association. The Rev. W. M. Thompson will deliver the sermon in the afternoon.

Red Oak's new building is of early American colonial architecture. It has stained glass windows and light oak floors and pews. The building includes rooms for six Sunday School classes. It is heated by an automatic oil burner furnace with an auxiliary air conditioning unit for summer weather.

The church wishes to express its thanks to the many people and the churches who helped to rebuild Red Oak and cordially invites the public to the services of dedication.

Farm Loans Reported

"The cooperative Federal Land Bank system, of which The National Farm Loan Association of Farmville is a part, recently passed the four billion dollar mark in volume of loans granted to farmers," Mr. J. F. Glenn, Secretary-Treasurer of the association, stated today. He added that this loan volume is a striking record of mortgage service to American agriculture, representing more than a million long-term loans to individual farmers since 1917, the funds being used to purchase land, refinance existing mortgages, and for other agricultural purposes.

"The land bank system," Mr. Glenn explained, "actually is owned by the farmers who obtain their mortgage credit through the local farm loan associations. Each borrower becomes an association member when his mortgage loan is granted. Contrary to a view sometimes held, the land banks do not lend Government money. All lending funds are obtained by the sale of farm loan bonds in the nation's money markets. These bonds are purchased by private investors."

"The NFLA of Farmville is one of 1241 of these farm mortgage cooperatives. Located in every agricultural community in the United States, they operate with the aim of providing their members long-term mortgage credit at the lowest cost consistent with sound credit principles," Mr. Glenn stated.

Land bank loans totaling $124,000 have been made to farmers in the territory served by the NFLA of Farmville in the past 12 months.

Prepare For Vote On Quotas

A list of flue-cured tobacco growers who are eligible to vote in the marketing quota referendum on July 23, 1949 has been compiled by the Appomattox County A. C. A. Committee and is open for inspection in the county office.

The referendum has been called in conformance with the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, which provides for quotas on flue - cured tobacco. However, quotas will not be in effect for 1950 unless approved by at least two-thirds of the growers voting in the referendum, C. C. Harvey, vice-chairman of the County Agricultural Conservation Committee, said that "any person who has an interest in the 1949 crop of flue-cured tobacco as owner, tenant, or share cropper, is eligible to vote in the referendum being held at Chap Voting Precinct on July 23. No person," he added, "is entitled to cast more than one vote even though he may be engaged in producing flue-cured tobacco in two or more communities, counties or states."

"Marketing quotas furnished the growers with a method of adjusting supply to demand and helped them obtain better prices for the tobacco they produce.

"As in the past," Mr. Harvey pointed out, "growers will vote on three propositions: (1) do you favor marketing quotas for three years - 1950, 1951 and 1952; (2) do you favor the quota for one year 1950, but oppose quotas for three years; or (3) are you opposed to any quotas?

"If quotas are approved, acreage allotments, conforming to past general patterns will be set. There will be small acreages available for adjusting old allotments for farms on which no tobacco has been grown during the past five years. Individual farm acreage allotments for 1950 will be about the same as the 1949 allotment for any farm which has produced up to 75 per cent of its allotted acreage in any one of the past three years.

"The legislation authorizing quotas on the 1950 and subsequent crops also provides for price support loans at 90 per cent of the parity price if marketing quotas are continued."

In the last flue-cured referendum held in 1946, over 97 per cent of the growers favored three-year quotas.

Local Farmers Cooperate For New Program

One hundred thirty-two Appomattox County farmers planted feed patches for wildlife during the 1949 planting seasons. In addition to these, four Appomattox County farmers made experimental plantings of multiflora rose, which are expected to grow into living fences.

In the summer of 1948, representatives of the State Game Commission requested the Robert E. Lee Soil Conservation District to assist them in locating farmers interested in planting food patches for birds and turkeys. The Game Commission was anxious to distribute the seed in the most desirable and economical manner. Appomattox County was chosen as the first county to try the extensive distribution in order to see if the plans would work for the rest of the state.

The Game Commission has found that restocking birds and turkeys is very expensive and that a very small percentage survive long enough for the hunters to shoot them. They have also found that where there is proper food and cover, the wild game will come in and survive. The cost of food patches is very small and the game population improves. Usually a covey of birds will be found around each feed plot of one-eighth of an acre.

The 132 farmers cooperating in the program own 48,175 acres of land.

The Game Commission furnished 94,000 bicolor lespedeza plants, 234 pounds of milo, 190 pounds of Wood's Wildlife mixture, over 9 tons of fertilizer and 1,400 Multiflora Rose plants.

Assisting the Game Commission in the program were the Soil Conservation Service, Vocational Agriculture classes, Veterans Farm Training classes and individual farmers of Appomattox County.

The program in the county was directed by C. H. Shacer, game technician, and D. A. Conner, game warden.
